THINKER, AUTHOR, SPEAKER

A student of life and a seeker of ultimate truth, Scott F. Paradis has spent the last two decades traveling the world working national security issues, observing the remarkable similarities of people from diverse cultures struggling with the forces of fear and arrogance; trying to control this ever-changing world and come to terms with what appears to be a fleeting, temporary existence. Scott has come to realize life isn't meant to be struggle or a chore, rather life is meant to be a creative adventure of growth, forgiveness and release leading home to pure joy and unbounded love.

Scott, a native of New Hampshire, is married to a shining star, the former Lisa Newcombe, and has two wonderful children: a college-age daughter, Merideth, and a junior high school—age son, Mitchell.

As a colonel in the U.S. Army, Scott has had an eclectic career. Currently he serves at Department of the Army working strategic communications. Formerly he was a National Security Fellow at Harvard University's John F. Kennedy School of Government; he helped to establish the Multi-National Corps' counter improvised explosive device task force in Iraq; he was a military legislative assistant to a United States Senator, a deputy commander of an Army installation, the head of government relations for the Chief of the Army Reserve, and aide-de-camp to the commanding general, Fifth U.S. Army. He also served in a variety of operational assignments, ranging from Operation Joint Endeavor in the Balkans to assorted line and staff infantry positions.

His civilian work experience ranges from police officer, to real estate agent, to computer, life and health insurance sales, to fast food and manufacturing.

In addition to his nearly four years of formal military schooling, Scott holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in Sociology from the University of New Hampshire and a Master of Science degree in Administration from Central Michigan University.

Scott asks that you journey with him to find the truth and fulfill your potential.
